RECOUNT GIVES SAME RESULT

Mr. Nelson Harriman was elected Water Commissioner of Mattapoisett as the recount held to check the vote did not change the result. In the recount, Mr. Harriman lost one vote for a total of 432, Mr. Anthony Secia lost a vote for a total of 424 and Mr. Ralph Wordell lost 3 votes for a 381 total. The blanks gained all the votes and the total blanks was 28.

In the election, a total of 1265 voted out of 1943 registered voters. It was a light vote for a beautiful election day which featured good contests for the top town offices.

Mr. Harriman is now the oldest elected Mattapoisett town official. He has served in many town positions in the past, having been Selectman and auditor as well as holding his present position for the last 30 years.

PARENT-TEACHERS MEET

The Mattapoisett Parent-Teachers Club met Thursday evening at the Center School. Mr. Paul Mullaney, vice-president, presided in the absence of Charles Dunn, president.

Mr. Peter Ordway, teacher of modern mathematics at Friends Academy, South Dartmouth, was the guest speaker. He gave a very explanatory talk on the modern program of mathematics in the schools today. Many new vocabulary words were pointed out and explained. He stressed the importance of the balance between reasoning and drill, with the emphasis on reasoning. The adjustment of the mathematic content with the pace of modern science is a serious but necessary problem. Also emphasized was the spiraling learning process of modern math with algebra and geometry problems and terms introduced in a simple way in the early grades. Parents were encouraged to become familiar with the new techniques, be interested and encourage their children, rather than follow the old cliche of "well I did poorly in math, so you will too" attitude. Mr. Ordway ended his excellent talk with several practical applications at the blackboard using the audience as students.

Coffee and pastry were served by Mrs. Pauline Collins and Mrs. Blanche Perry.

VOTER REGISTRATION

The final day for registering to vote for the April 28th Presidential Primary is March 27th from 12 noon to 10 P.M. Mattapoisett Town Clerk, Helen Tinkham, said that there is a change this year in establishing or changing party enrollment. Anyone wishing to do this must do so before 5 P.M. on March 27th.

REPUBLICAN TOWN COMMITTEE MEETING

Members of the Marion Republican Town Committee interpreted as a good omen the good attendance at a recent meeting, because voters had been engaged in Town Meeting affairs all of the week. Henry Backus, newly elected Selectman, was present. The meeting was conducted by the chairman, Attorney Richard W. Paull.

State Committee candidates were allotted five minutes each to outline their qualifications, and a question period followed. Those present were Miss Esther Taiknas of Falmouth, Mrs. Jean Olmsted of Brewster, Robert Jones of Barnstable. Mrs. Olmsted announced a neighbor-thon as a feature of her candidacy.

Leo Dary, field co-ordinator for the Republican State Committee, outlined his duties, and described a voter survey that is being used by some Committees. Many of the features are similar to a system worked out by the Marion Committee and its former chairman, James R. Fraser, and still in practice.

Mr. Dary said publicity of Committee activities is desirable, and announced that the State Committee now has a Public Relations Director.

Regarding the slates of at-large delegates for the National Convention, discussion brought out the general opinion that it had been unwise to drop Lloyd Waring to substitute George Lodge on the first slate announced, and which has since been followed by two others in the 12th District.

April 28th is the date of the Presidential Primary.

GOVERNOR PEABODY SPEAKS

Governor Endicott Peabody of Massachusetts was the principal speaker at the kickoff workshop of the Massachusetts Citizens Scholarship Foundation held at Boston University on March 8th. The Governor, honorary president of the Massachusetts Citizens Foundation, enthusiastically endorsed the work of the foundation and informed the group that all the New England Governors had pledged their support to the plan. In stressing the need for more chapters in the State, the Governor stated that the idea of communities investing in their future leaders by helping with scholarships at a most critical time was wery commendable. With the advent of the NASA contract and of other industries locating in our State, he continued, qualified men and women will be needed now and in future years.

Also on the program were three workshops to aid the large group in attendance: 1, How to Organize a Chapter of the CSF; 2, How to Raise Funds; and 3, How to Award Scholarships.

The week of April 5-11 has been designated as National Citizens Scholarship Week. The Old Rochester Regional Citizen Scholarship Foundation is a non-profit, non-sectarian, community-wide effort to help deserving graduates of high school, both public and parochial, receive future education.

(In the first paragraph below, notice the reference to "a returned Californian, with lots of gold." This dance took place only a few years after half the male population of Mattapoisett had sailed to California in the Gold Rush of 1849. The "lots of gold" is ironical exaggeration; a few men returned with moderate sums, none with a fortune.)

'The next thing on the peppergram,' to quote the saying of the illustrious Christy, was the 'Schottische,' danced by one of our ladies and a blushing young man, who was said to be a returned Californian, with lots of gold. For fear of consequences, I shall not describe either of them, farther than to say that the lady was dressed in black silk, wore gold spectacles and danced divinely.

But, now we have mentioned spectacles, a word touching our friend in the green goggles, whom I profanely christened 'Lanky Wobbles.' While the second set was being made up, he introduced himself to one other lady, and asked her to be his partner. She excused herself on the plea of weariness, the reality of which he seemed to doubt, for he departed in high dudgeon, but an idea happening to strike him as he was going, he turned round and said: 'Wal, if you're sick, and don't want tew dance, wal and good, but if you get up with any body else, look eout!'

Another set was soon made up, and another and another, until there were six on the floor, not to reckon the fragment of one composed by a number of small boys; and all were hard at work, gliding and sliding like the poet's muse, 'with many-twinkling feet.' Some of the ladies were really graceful in their movements, and went through their figures lightly and beautifully; but the majority were too sudden and angular. How they could jump to high--for the floor, so far as I could judge, did not spring--was a mystery to me. I noticed one gentleman, in particular, who would have made his fortune at Franconi's or Astley's by turning double-summersets.

The short, thick-set man in the red scarf, who had the honor of starting the ball, was one of the most agile, but his manner of dancing was not the most agreeable: to characterize it artistically, I should say it had too much 'breadth,' and speaking after the manner of St. Giles, I should say it flopped about too much. When he was rising, I wondered where he would fall, and when falling, where he would rise again. Once or twice, I found to my sorrow that his descents were made upon my corns.

Matters went on thus for a couple of hours. Set after set was made up and exhausted until the hour of midnight came, and a voice took possession of the atmosphere of the room, saying: 'GENTS! SUPPER'S READY!'

The manner of announcing supper was never excelled but once before, and that was by Bailey in 'Martin Chuzzlewit,' when he informed the Pecksniffs and the rest of Mrs. Todger's boarders, 'The vittles is up!' The dance was finished in a minute, much to the horror of the music leader, who kept on with his tune, and a general rush took place for the supper-room, and as usual, the red-sashed man got in first by a long odds. The supper-room was beneath the ball-room, and was as light as that was dark. From the number of lamps on the table, I began at first to think they were destined to have a light supper; but never was I more agreeably disappointed.

The table was loaded down by roast chickens, turkeys, and ducks, and in front of our places, which had been kept for us, stood a couple of wild fowl that I had killed the afternoon before; and there was a large collection of cold meats, boiled and roast, and pies, and cakes, and jellies and bon-bons to match. If they didn't understand the art of dressing in that neighborhood, they did understand that of cooking, and need not have been ashamed to invite any gourmet to partake of that supper. Every thing was in abundance and aburdantly was it 'punished.' Nor were sundry decanters filled with colored liquids, evidently vinous, wanting to complete the evening's entertainment; but of these I have no personal knowledge, for on such occasions I am always Johnsonian in my devotion to tea.

But now, as the night, or rather the morning, was growing late, and I was growing sleepy, having been up for some nights previous, I escorted my 'attending angels' home, and left the rest of the company to do what they pleased; and it pleased most of them to dance again; for I learned the next morning, from a certain young gentleman with red eyes and bad headache, that they 'kept it up' till four in the morning, when they broke up as merry as ever:
